

Stalled out on saving species

Chart: Rate of Endangered Species Act listings by presidential administration. To date, the Bush administration has listed only 39 species, all under court order, for a rate of just eight per year. By comparison, the Clinton administration protected 512 species and the elder Bush administration protected 234 species.

Source: Center for Biological Diversity